Certain Victory for White Sox-Comiskey

That world's series ought to be easy for the White Sox. I haven't a doubt as to the outcome. My players are all as confident as I am, and the final result is giving me very little worry. The Cuba beat us last year four out of five games, but I haven't been able to figure out yet how they did it. My boys have just pome out of one of the toughest pennant battles on record, and they emerged with colors flying, good game work overcoming accidents and the fierce apposition of our opponents. The Sox showed me enough of their mettle in the closing month of the League season to convince me that they will never stop fighting for the world's pennant until it is safely their own. The series ought to bring out the greatest basebail skill and genius ever displayed, but you can't tell about that. With both teams going into the struggle with full strength, we'll come home in front by an easy margin. Keep your eye on the White Sox.

Struggle for Flag Will Be Close Murphy

In my opinion the baseball games to be played in Chicago for the highest honor in organized professional baseball—the championship of the world—will be the most bitterly contested of any series of games ever played for that honor. The contesting clubs have battled valiantly for the past six months for the baseball honor and glory of the greatest city in the world, and they will strain every point to honorably triumph in these memorable contests. On account of the geographical location of Chicago a record-breaking attendance is promised. The West Side baseball park expects to accommodate ho less than 25,000 people with comfortable seats, which is, according to official information, the greatest number of enthusiasts that has ever withessed the national pastime no incidence.
